Navicure Adds CIO to Growing Executive Team

Fred Christian brings 26 years of information technology experience to fast-growing healthcare IT vendor

ATLANTA, January 16, 2007—Navicure, a leading provider of Web-based revenue cycle management (RCM) solutions, today announced the appointment of Fred Christian as chief information officer. In this role, he will provide vision and leadership in the development and implementation of information technology programs that service internal and external customers.

Before joining Navicure, Christian served as CIO for Coalition America Corporation, a leader in medical claim savings. During his time with Coalition America, he helped expand the company's IT staff from 4 to more than 40 employees, and scaled the internal infrastructure from 2 to 70 servers. Prior to that, Christian spent 13 years with BP Corporation where he held various management roles. He earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from Texas A&M University.

"As our client base grows it is critical that we build and maintain a strong technology infrastructure," said James Denny, president and CEO of Navicure. "Fred has a proven track record of success in this important area and we are thrilled to have him on board."

Navicure's automated, Web-based RCM solutions, which include claims management, electronic remittance posting and secondary claims processing, help physician practices quickly eliminate billing errors, identify payment trends and improve operational efficiency. All electronic transactions are processed in accordance with HIPAA's privacy and security requirements, and hundreds of EDI formats are supported—resulting in the ability to process a greater number of electronic transactions by reaching all payers who offer electronic capabilities.

"Navicure is poised for staggering growth and I look forward to playing an integral role in helping support this growth," Christian said.
